

What you achieved for egg-laying hens

Thank you for all you have done to help egg-laying hens in Canada. You've given them a dozen reasons to celebrate!!

2010

Curb the Cruelty

Your powerful voice led to Canada's Food Inspection Agency doubling its fines.

Helping Canada Choose cage-free

Our first Choose Cage-free campaign asked you to influence your local grocery stores and restaurants.

April 2012

You asked:

What's on your plate?

You exposed the true costs of intensive agriculture on animals, the environment, people's health and rural communities.

Throughout 2013

Celebrities choose cage-free too

The momentum you built meant celebrity chefs Christine Cushing and Jaimie Kennedy helped spread the word.

July 2015

You helped us join NFACC

As members of Canada's National Farm Animal Care Council, you are part of the most important discussions on farm animal protection happening in Canada.

2011

The Million Egg Challenge

Thanks to 40,000 people just like you we met with one of the biggest food brands in the world.

2011 - 2012

8 campuses go cage-free

Your outreach to university and college students meant more than 400,000 eggs a year are now coming from cage-free hens.

March 2013

The hens get a makeover

You led the way for animals so we launched a blog to get you closer to the hens you were helping.

October 2013

A boycott!

Supporters just like you from all over Calgary stood up for hens at the Calgary Co-op boycott.

September 2015

McDonald's commits to cage-free eggs

Your continued pressure saw McDonald's commit to cage-free eggs by 2025, that affects 7 million hens each year.

March 2016

Sobeys, Loblaws and Wal-Mart commit

Your support led to the grocery members of the Retail Council of Canada moving to sourcing only cage-free eggs by 2025.

February 2016

Tim Hortons and A&W commit to cage-free eggs

Tim Hortons committed to cage-free by 2025. A&W committed to cage-free sourcing in just two years' time.

Thank you

Because of your powerful voice we will see a day when all of Canada's 28 million egg-laying hens will live free from battery cages. And chickens need you again.

Change for chickens

More chickens are farmed for meat than any other land animal in the world. And the scale of their suffering is huge.

Chickens are suffering:

- Weak bones: caused by growing too quickly and barren, crowded environments that discourage activity. This leads to painful lameness and skeletal disorders as the chickens' bodies get heavier and heavier.
- Overworked hearts and lungs: extremely rapid growth means chickens are vulnerable to heart failure and other respiratory problems.
- Wounds, sores and burns: crammed together in barren environments, the chickens spend more time sitting or lying down in their own waste, which can cause significant skin problems.

The world consumes 60 billion chickens every year

40B

Most of them (nearly 40 billion) are factory grown

Typically, tens of thousands of birds are farmed together in enormous sheds

Chickens need you. You have shown that change for farm animals is possible. You can help end one of the biggest causes of animal suffering in the world today. Visit worldanimalprotection.ca
